Bands like BDV show that art is not all about paintings and sculptures but is a form of expression. Junior Ross Lambert comments, "Music is an art form because it is an original form of creative self expression." Classic films by Shakespeare were also shown during this week. Sophomore Alex Marsh says, "I don't really know what they are saying, but I like to see the different students watching these classics."

PROM Wonderful Tonight

Buying a corsage and applying makeup are just some of the last-minute preparations students engage in as they prepare for a night of fairy tales. Princes and princesses enter the Raddison at the Graystone Castle; enthusiasm and anticipation stirs, and they look forward to a night full of memorable moments. Later, the ballroom vanishes, the costumes are shed and the students shuffle their way through a maze of movies. Their fantasies of being stars are fulfilled. The characters of Maverick and Rocky are portrayed as the students demonstrate their skills at gambling and boxing. The dream fades, but the memories linger on.

MURDER WITH A TWIST

This year students performed Arsenic and Old Lace by Joseph Kesserling on April 24 and 25. It featured four seniors, six juniors and four sophomores.

The story centers around a family that has some odd tendencies. Mortimer Brewster is an average man with two very strange aunts, Martha and Abby Brewster, who poison old, lonely men to put them out of their misery.

Soon Mortimer's missing brother, Jonathan, wanted for murder, returns to hide out at the aunts' house. The third brother, Teddy, adds much comedy because he believes he is President Theodore Roosevelt. The whole while, Mortimer is engaged to his next door neighbor, Elaine Harper, who is oblivious to what is going on with the family.

Sophomore Andrew Lagerborg said, "I really enjoyed playing the character of Jonathan Brewster because I got the chance to play someone who was really evil. I liked the comedy of the play, but being mean was fun, too."

All the performers put in many hours of rehearsal time to make the play a success and an enjoyable time for the audience.

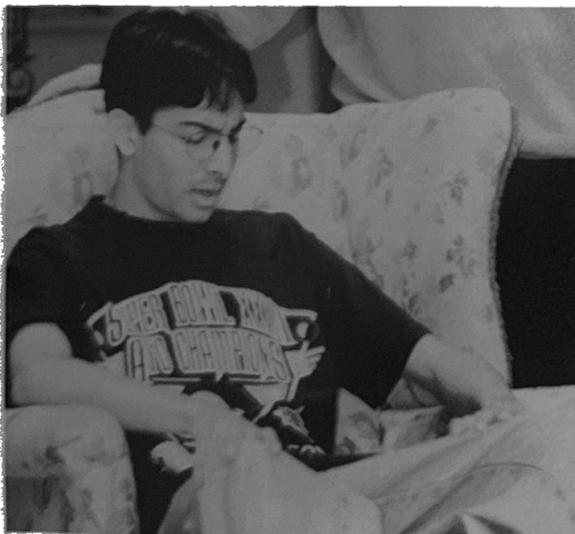

Sophomore Christine Bell, one of the head crew workers, explained, "This is my second 'non-musical,' and I really enjoyed working with the many members of the crew. I got the chance to meet new people and make many new friends while working on the set. I also liked working with Mrs. Caruthers." The cast and crew worked very hard to make sure the play went
